Dear Mr. Holligan,

On behalf of the Office of International Programs, I am writing to thank you, once again, for another very successful round of awards, which will enable a summer of study abroad for the most deserving Princeton students. Summer programs continue to be a coveted way for students to gain international experience and to enhance their learning through educational opportunities that extend beyond our campus.

In this year's application cycle, we received over 200 requests for financial support, most from students whose financial aid covers all their college expenses. As the University seeks to be more socioeconomically inclusive, we are eager to make sure that all students have access to the educational opportunities available to everyone in the Princeton community.

Regular financial aid is not available in the summer, so the only way to be sure that all students can equally participate in summer study abroad opportunities is to provide funding from other special sources. Thanks to dedicated endowments for summer study abroad like yours, we can begin to address equality of opportunity as we expand our students' global reach.

This summer, your funds will provide substantial support to students participating in summer language study programs. The following students benefited from your generosity:

- Elizabeth Chittenden (Walam wa Lawh Center for Arabic Studies, Morocco)
- Jacob Christensen (Princeton in Munich, Germany)

We will be back in touch in the fall to tell you more about these students' experiences, which we are sure will be highly educational and, hopefully, memorable.

We are deeply grateful for your continued generosity and for your commitment to international study at Princeton University.

Yours truly,
